Hockey Team Goes North For Tourney

One of the main events of the men's extramurals is the key tournaments, held this weekend at the University of Washington. Friday the team will play against Everett College; Saturday, Skagit County; and Sunday, University of Puget Sound.

The girls are going in school cars. They will leave Pasco Thursday, at 3:30 p.m., and they will return late Sunday night. The team will stay at Vancouver, B.C., where the games will be held.

The girls have been practicing every weekend. They hope to make a good showing for Columbia Basin College as well as improving their own hockey skills.

Mathis Plays To Packed House

A sellout crowd of more than 100 people attended the CBC-sponsored Johnny Mathis concert in the Pasco High auditorium last Thursday night. ASB President Larry Williamson said Tuesday that he was happy with the show and that it was a complete success.

Williamson was very emphatic in his praise for the show in charge of promoting the show.

The ASB council wishes to thank Gay Edwards, chairman; Betty Mapes, who sold the tickets; and Mrs. Stappler, who handled outside publicity," he said.

Williamson was very lucky to get a performer of this caliber, according to Mrs. Venetta Stappler, director of Women's activities. Usually a show such as the Johnny Mathis presentation cannot be had for less than $5,000, and there is no auditorium in the Tri-Cities large enough for the size audience necessary to raise this kind of money and still sell the tickets for a reasonable price. In this case, however, the Johnny Mathis show was to be in the Tri-Cities that night for a rest stop-over and they agreed to put on a show for 95 per cent of the take. There was no minimum guarantee for CBC to meet.

Because there are only 1200 seats in the Pasco High auditorium, there wasn't much chance for CBC to make a lot of money with the Mathis show taking 95 per cent. The college did make $178, however.

Mrs. Stappler pointed out that making money had not been the purpose of the concert. "We wanted to take advantage of a chance to bring top-notch entertainment at a reasonable price to our students and the community," she said.

Larry Golden Set For First Lecture

The well-known writer, editor and publisher, Harry Golden, will speak to Columbia Basin College students and faculty Wednesday in the gym.

Golden, who edits and publishes the Carolina Israelite, also compiled books titled "Only in America" and "For 2c Plain," that were on the best seller lists.

Golden taught school in New York City before he began writing for the New York Daily Mirror. In 1939 Golden moved to Charlotte, N.C., where he still An adaptation of Golden's life was produced on Broadway in 1959.

In addition to "Only in America" and "For 2c Plain," Golden has published "Enjoy, Enjoy!" "You're Entitled," "Carl Sandburg," "Forgotten Pioneer" and "Mr. Kennedy and the Negroes," all of which were best sellers.

Golden will appear on campus at 10 a.m.

Several copies of Golden's paper, the Carolina Israelite are in Mrs. Stappler's office.

Magnuson To Speak Tuesday

Washington's senior senator, Warren G. Magnuson, (D-Wash.) will appear on the Columbia Basin College campus next Tuesday. Magnuson will speak to the student body from 10 to 10:30 a.m. in the gym, according to Dr. Donald T. Rippey, CBC President.

The senator will speak on items that relate to Appropriations Committee assignments, according to Rippey.

After the speech, Magnuson will speak exclusively to the Young Democrats Club for 15 minutes. Location for the Young Democrats meeting will be announced later.

"I hope that the students will take advantage of Sen. Magnuson's visit. It's not often that we have an opportunity to hear someone who is so well-informed speak on campus," said Rippey.

Magnuson will be in the Tri-Cities to dedicate the new federal building in Richland.

14 People Use Library Saturday

A total of 14 people used the library Saturday, October 30, librarian Mildred A. Partch reported Tuesday.

Students were in the library using reference materials, bound periodicals, and study areas. Three students checked out books. Of these 14 people, only one was in the library for more than two hours. Some were there for only 15 minutes to a half an hour.

Rippey Attends Meeting In Olympia

Dr. Donald Rippey, president of CBC, was in Olympia yesterday for a meeting of the executive committee of the Washington State Association of Community Colleges. On the same trip, Dr. Rippey also conferred with State Superintendent of Public Instruction Louis Bruno.

The purpose of both these meetings was to discuss and plan for the future of the Washington community college system.

One-Acts Presented Tonight

Tonight marks the opening of the first production of the year for the CBC Drama department. The show "An Evening With Chekhov" is a series of three one act comedies written by Anton Chekhov.

Students cast for "A Marriage Proposal" are Dianna Niel, Stan Hosack and Terry Schoen. "The Boor" will have Sally Gladden, Jack Snowden and Jo Miles and for "A Tragedian In Spite of Himself" we will see Hilliard Griffin and Jack Nesbitt.

The plays will be presented arena style in the lounge at 8:15 tonight, Saturday and Sunday. The public is invited, admission will be $1.00 for adults and 50c for children. The show is free to students with an ASB card.

SWANS Hold Car Wash

Southern Washington Associated Nursing Students of Washington are holding a car wash in Pasco, November 6.

KORD radio will carry further details.

All profits will be given to the ASB scholarship fund.

Student Y Advisors Needed

Tri-City junior high school YMCA groups are in need of approximately 30 advisors, preferably CBC students. Their meetings last from a half hour to 45 minutes and are usually held on a week night.

The time and night of the meetings can be adapted to the advisor's schedule. Past membership in a Y group is not necessary, although it may prove to be helpful.

Two advisors may work together with a group. Anyone interested in advising a junior high YMCA group is encouraged to contact Larry Willis, Chuck Malody, Kay Marker, Sandra Christensen, or Jeff Heatherington at the Richland YMCA.

Tech-Voc Dept. Revises Constitution

The technical vocational council submitted Monday a revised constitution to the Associated Student Body Council.

Designed to conform to the requirements of the new ASB constitution for one tech voc representative in the ASB council, the new constitution makes the tech-voc council president the official representative to the ASB council.

Hey, Your Publicity's Showing!

Many people have wondered why the entertainment presented by CBC has drawn such poor turnouts. Many big names have drawn only a sprinkling of an audience.

"What went wrong," people ask. "We all know about it."

True, the entire student body may have known about this, but how many of the people in the surrounding area were aware of these events?

Even if the entire school population knows of these special events, there is usually only a portion able to attend due to studies, jobs, and other hindrances. This cuts down the potential student attendance considerably.

THERE IS, of course, the high school crowd. Most of the local high school students know of the special entertainment programs at CBC. However, the relatively higher admission prices, compared with that of other local entertainment, usually discourages a large portion of the high school crowd.

This leaves the rest of the audience to be filled by non-students, namely members of the Tri-City populace.

However, it seems that much of the populace is uninformed as to the entertainment CBC offers. It seems that, besides some minute story in the local paper, little publicity is given the arrival and appearance of big-name entertainers.

SOME PUBLICITY is usually presented on the local radio stations, but those stations are generally the ones that patronize the students, so the general public still remains relatively uninformed.

We have talked with several local businessmen who are fairly well-informed as to local happenings about the poor attendance at these school-sponsored presentations. They told us that they have never heard about several of these guest appearances.

A local television newsman told us that he had asked the college several times to inform him of any special events happening at CBC. He said that, up to this year, he had received no information of any CBC-sponsored production.

THE JOHNNY MATHIS show, held last week, played to a packed house. We believe this was due mainly to the excellent advance publicity given on radio and television, and in the local newspaper.

The CBC publicity chairman, Miss Gay Edwards, supplied the local news media with pictures, press releases, and information regarding the Mathis show. For once a local television station received news of this event. The newspaper ran a noticeable announcement on their theatre page. Most of the radio stations made some announcement of the show.

The turnout for the Mathis show was no fluke. The auditorium was full because the public knew Mathis was presenting a show here.

All CBC-sponsored presentations can be just as successful as this one if the publicity is handled as conscientiously as it was for this show. We believe past shows could have been more successful if more publicity would have been put through the right channels.

We would like to take this opportunity to congratulate Miss Edwards on a thorough publicity job, and express our hope that the effort shown for the Mathis show is carried out for future presentations.

Last year I bought my Homecoming mum early. It was a pretty mum, all blue and white with lots of goodies on it and I thought it looked nice.

Well, I had my mum and I thought some cute chick would see me wearing it and ask me to the dance. I wore it every day. But no one asked me to the Homecoming dance.

Lots of people said I looked ridiculous wearing a mum, though.

So finally I went to the dance without a girl. I went stag.

I should keep mum about the dance; all those other people staring at me dancing with my Hawk Eye . . .

By RON SHADE
Collegiate Sports Editor

Since coming to Columbia Basin College, this reporter has heard many comments, both on and off campus, concerning the recruiting system for athletes at CBC. Most of these comments focus on the idea that CBC "gets all their talent by importing players and giving them a free ride." I decided to look into the recruiting system to find out why CBC has lured so many outstanding athletes.

The first thing that must be clearly understood is that there is no such thing as a "free ride" at CBC or any other junior college in the state. Dwight Pool, football coach, says the CBC ruling states that "the maximum amount of grant any athlete may receive from a junior college is tuition, which comes to $70 at CBC, and a possible job in the school district, which the person must qualify before receiving the job."

Perhaps one reason people believe CBC has such a good scholarship program is because they confuse it with the larger universities. The National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) maximum grant program provides for "board and room, tuition, books, and $15 per month for such things as laundry expenses." Compared to the NCAA, CBC has very little to offer.

The recruiting program at CBC is based primarily on contacts through high school coaches.

Pool explains: "Letters are written to these coaches, asking for information on the player or players they think could play ball for CBC. The coaches review films, consider the coach's information, and decide whether or not the player can help the college. Then, one of the college coaches makes a trip to the high school and talks to the principal, coach, and the player to see if the player is interested in coming to CBC."

Other methods of recruiting include trips to Seattle, Portland, and Spokane. Coach Pool says, "We very seldom get players from these areas because of the many colleges located near those cities."

Along with the tuition grants, several jobs are offered to the student. The jobs may vary, depending on the college. For example, some JC's are located within the city, thus providing job opportunities in that city. Some of the colleges have booster clubs made up of merchants who provide jobs for the athletes who want or need them. CBC does not have such a club, so all their jobs come from the school district.

The decision as to who will receive a job is made by the coaches. These jobs are not necessarily given to the same person who receives a grant. Also, once this person receives a job, it does not mean he will keep it all year. He can be fired if he is not doing the work. The jobs pay $1.50 an hour. They work two and one-half hours a day, five days a week.

The total amount of grants is determined in the same manner as all other grants such as debate, music, and science. One-third of the total number of players turning out for the sport may receive a grant. For example, there are 74 football players, so there are 28 grants.

Columbia Basin has several athletes from out-of-state. "Those coming from out-of-state," says Pool, "are not recruited by us. This does not mean we don't write to them and see if they're interested in coming out here. Sometimes we hear about them, but most of the time they write us and we don't hear from them until fall practice begins."

There are several reasons why CBC has out-of-state athletes. First, there are no junior colleges back East that play football. If a football player wants to continue his education but cannot qualify for a university, there is no other place he can go except out West. The large universities in the West try to encourage the Eastern players to go to a junior college, get their grades up, and transfer to a university. The reason for this is they can compete with the Big Ten conference.

The records at CBC speak for themselves, and it is these records that draw many of the out-of-state players. These athletes know that they will receive top-notch coaching.

An interesting feature about the CBC football team is that out of the top 33 players, 16 came to CBC on their own. Coach Pool says, "This does not mean that we are not helping them now, because as the grants become available, we offer them to the athletes."

Hawks Cop State JC Crown

By RON SHADE
Collegiate Sports Editor

The nationally ranked Columbia Basin Hawks captured their fifth straight Washington JC Conference championship Saturday night by shutting out the Everett Trojans 27-0 in Pasco.

The Hawks' victory, coupled with the Grays Harbor 25-6 win over Wenatchee, gave the defending champions the title outright with only one conference game remaining.

CBC travels to Grays Harbor tomorrow night to play the tough Chokers and finish the season the following week with University of Idaho Frosh. The November 13 game with the Idaho Frosh is CBC's homecoming.

Coach Dwight Pool's "Gang Busters" provided the Hawks with their fourth shutout this season while holding the Trojans to 81 yards rushing and 51 yards passing. Everett crossed the Hawks' 50 only twice in the game—they intercepted a Hawk pass on CBC's 23, and got to the 43 one other time.

QUARTERBACK Ray Brum continued to show his brilliant form by throwing two touchdown passes to halfback Jerry Bailey. Fullback Dick Brown scored the Hawks' other two touchdowns on an 11-yard blast and a one-yard plunge.

The Hawks' defense outshined Brum and Company with their aggressive play. Led by linebacker Bob Beers, playing his best game of the season, the "Gang Busters" picked off five Everett passes and snatched four fumbles. Beers turned in 60 and Bailey five. Although assisted, and intercepted two passes. Defensive safety Charlie Hayes intercepted his sixth pass this season, tying a school record. Lineman Ron East recovered three fumbles in setting a new school record.

CBC gained 313 yards with for 138 yards. The Hawks rush-

Actually, out-of-state students have a much harder time going to CBC than the in-state students. He must pay for the rest of his tuition ($90 dollars), find a place to eat and sleep, buy books, arrange transportation to and from school, and have money for his expenses.

A breakdown of where the CBC football team players come from looks like this: Tri-Cities, nine; around the Tri-City area, nine; state of Washington, 45; Oregon and Idaho, 17; elsewhere, 14. The 31 out-of-staters are mostly made up students from Oregon and Idaho. There is only one JC in Idaho (Boise) and one (Treasure Valley) in Oregon that play football.

It seems that whenever a school has a winning team everyone tries to find an excuse other than the fact that they have a good coaching staff. The biggest asset to CBC is their coaching, and I believe this is why their records are great.

ed for 23 yards with Brown getting 16 unassisted tackles, three as the offense couldn't cash in on several opportunities, the reserves played most of the second half and scored two touchdowns—Arnold Clark's 60-yard run was called back because of a holding penalty.

BRUM directed the Hawks to three touchdowns in a span of five and one-half minutes. Brown blasted up the middle of the Everett line for an 11-yard touchdown late in the first quarter after Brum sparked the drive with a 23-yard pass to end Jim Northcott.

Two plays after the kick-off, Ron East recovered a Jim Morgan fumble on the Everett 36. On the first play, Bailey outran the Trojan safety man and pulled in a Brum pass for a touchdown with only 56 seconds gone in the second quarter.

With Brum tossing to Northcott for 17 yards and a seven-yard gain on a screen pass to Brown, the Hawks drove to the EJC 26, where Brum again threw to Bailey on the same play that scored the second TD and Bailey grabbed the ball for his second touchdown.

The Hawks' third TD came with only seconds remaining before the half. A 27-yard pass to Bailey put the ball on the one-yard line to set the stage for Brown's plunge.

MATHIS MET: Johnny Mathis, recording artist, was met last Thursday by Mrs. Venetta Stappler, director of women's activities, and a representative group of CBC students at the Pasco Airport. Mathis and "The Young Generation," a singing group, put on a show sponsored by CBC Thursday night at the Pasco High School auditorium.

CBC Meets Chokers

Coach Jack Elway's Grays Harbor Chokers will be trying to better their 3-2 conference record as they entertain the CBC Hawks this Saturday.

The Chokers, still riding their 23-17 come-from-behind victory over the Yakima Indians, will sport an offensive team which averages 196 pounds.

The Hawks must win this game in order to remain in contention for the Junior Rose Bowl bid. CBC, unbeaten in seven games this year, will be attempting to extend their two-year winning skein to 12 games. Since 1956, the Hawks have compiled a 6-3 record against the Chokers.

Tuition Tax Credit Plan Suggested

By Dr. O. C. Carmichael, Jr., college students and to create President Citizens National Committee for Higher Education, Inc. A plan designed to ease the support from both educators financial burden of parents of and legislators.

The concept of granting tax credits for some expenses of higher education has had bipartisan backing in both houses of Congress for more than a decade, but has never been enacted into law.

Now there are signs that a tuition tax credit measure may pass in the current session of the 89th Congress.

The tuition tax credit concept stems from widespread concern over the mounting costs of tuition and fees at both private and publicly supported colleges and universities. Proponents of the measure note that costs have been rising at an increasing rate, and that all evidence indicates that they will continue to do so.

The reason, they point out, is that increased enrollments, necessary increases in faculty salaries, and general increases in expenses have forced annual operating budgets sharply upward. The increased budgets have mirrored almost universally in alarming rises in the cost of a college education to the student and his family.

Tuition tax credit was conceived to relieve financial pressure on persons paying for college educations and to reduce the threat of students being priced off the campus.

THE measure would permit a credit against the Federal income tax of persons paying for tuition, fees, and other essential expenses of college students.

Advocates of the plan emphasize the difference between a tax credit and a tax deduction. Each dollar of credit would reduce a person's tax by one dollar. If a taxpayer owed $100 at the end of the tax year had qualified for a $400 credit would save exactly $400 for the individual whether he earned $5,000 a year or $20,000. A deduction, on the other hand, would save a $20,000 year man more tax dollars than a $5,000-a-year man.

The Ribicoff-Dominick measure - typical of the many credit bills put forth by members of both houses in recent years - is based on the $1,500 paid for tuition, books, and supplies per student at an institution of higher learning.

Work Program Helps Students

By LARRY KEATS
Collegiate Staff Writer
The Work Opportunities Program is designed to allow the needy student to supplement his income. According to Mrs. Venetta Stappler, director of women's activities, a popular misconception is that this program will totally support the student. Actually, the program is only designed to pay for the quarterly fees of the student.

In order to qualify for an on-campus job, the student must make formal application through Mrs. Stappler's office. The job applicant must also be able to maintain at least a 2.0 grade-point average. He also must be enrolled as a full-time student (12 hours). The applicant is considered for a job on the basis of earliness of application and upon the degree of skill which he possesses.

Once an applicant receives a job, he works at least one hour a day at $1.25 an hour, so that by the end of the quarter he earns at least $70 (the amount of his tuition). He receives his money on the 20th of every month.

HIS accumulated time is put on a time sheet, and recorded on the district payroll. Often, a student keeps his job for the entire two years at CBC.

A BREAKDOWN of the number of people employed on campus reads as follows: Library staff—12, cafeteria and snack bar—2, guidance center—3, front office—9, division-chairmen, clerk and secretaries—8, switchboard operators—6, science-lab personnel—8, distributive education personnel—8. There is a total of 96 people employed by this program. The distributive education people receive not only remuneration but also class credit as well.

Mrs. Stappler estimated that the monthly payroll for this program is $20,000. She stated that there are other sources of employment on campus besides the Work Opportunities Program.

Arthur Nelson, head custodian, also employs a certain number of people for janitorial duty. Mrs. Stappler said that while one hour per day per employee was usual, during registration the student registrars often worked much longer.

Mrs. Stappler has more information on this program.

IN 1964, a bill introduced by Senators Abraham A. Ribicoff, D., Conn., and Peter H. Dominick, R., Colo., and co-sponsored by thirty-five senators of both parties failed passage by the narrow margin of 48 votes to 45. The bill has been re-introduced in the present Congress.

During recent weeks added support for tax credit legislation has come from such groups as the Young Republican Federation and the House Republican Conference.

Educators, too, are demonstrating strong backing for the measure. Interim results of a poll being conducted by the Citizens National Committee for Higher Education (CNCHE) of South Bend, Indiana, show that more than 89 percent of college presidents and trustees responding favor the principles embodied in tuition tax credit.

EDUCATIONAL organizations voicing support for the principle include the Association of American Colleges and the Citizens for Educational Freedom.
